Scotia Beneficiary Stories: Kiara

Kiara believes I Am A Girl Barbados (IAAGB) is a sisterhood where everyone works together to achieve what they want. She was a victim of bullying in secondary school, which left her feeling lost about her future. Through the mentorship she received from the IAAGB's Adopt-A-Girl Programme, Kiara is on her way to becoming a mentor to provide support to other young girls who were once like her. She's truly happy that her mom signed her up.

“ Knowing that Scotiabank supports I Am A Girl Barbados, other girls in the programme could have the same opportunities that I have. It made me believe in myself and become a better person. It helped me gain confidence. I really appreciate being in this organization. It really helped a lot. – Kiara, IAAGB Adopt-A-Girl participant ”

Scotiabank (Barbados) Limited has been an IAAGB partner since their launch in 2014, and recently increased its investment in the Adopt-A-Girl Programme. We are proud to assist young girls with educational and social opportunities, guiding them on the path towards academic and career success.
